

TPP: THE POLLUTERS' POWERGRAB!

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) is a trade deal being negotiated between the US and 11 other nations. The public is barred from seeing TPP negotiating texts, but almost 600 corporate advisers, including reps of many of the corporations most responsible for climate change, have access, allowing them to influence US negotiating positions. Before sending TPP to Congress, President Obama has called upon Congress to grant him Fast Track trade authority, which will ban Congress from amending a single word of TPP's most environmentally destructive provisions before voting to implement the agreement.

TPP THREATENS TO:

- grant oil, gas, and mining companies the power to sue governments for unlimited sums in monetary damages in World Bank tribunals for enforcing their environmental laws.
- increase production of GHG intensive foods like farmed shrimp & meat from ruminant livestock by lowering tariffs and food safety standards.
- prohibit member governments from setting environmental standards for government purchasing, such as “Buy Recycled,” “Good Wood,” and “Buy Local” rules.
- increase exports of rainforest destroying Malaysian and Peruvian palm oil by eliminating import tariffs in TPP nations.

HOW CAN WE STOP THIS?

Call your Senators and your Representative and urge them to publicly commit to vote NO on TPP. You can find their names and contact info at <http://gjae.org/leg>.

Global Justice for Animals & the Environment

(718) 218-4523 Email: info@tradejustice.net Web: <http://gjae.org>

TPP: THE POLLUTERS' POWERGRAB!

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) is a trade deal being negotiated between the US and 11 other nations. The public is barred from seeing TPP negotiating texts, but almost 600 corporate advisers, including reps of many of the corporations most responsible for climate change, have access, allowing them to influence US negotiating positions. Before sending TPP to Congress, President Obama has called upon Congress to grant him Fast Track trade authority, which will ban Congress from amending a single word of TPP's most environmentally destructive provisions before voting to implement the agreement.

TPP THREATENS TO:

- grant oil, gas, and mining companies the power to sue governments for unlimited sums in monetary damages in World Bank tribunals for enforcing their environmental laws.
- increase production of GHG intensive foods like farmed shrimp & meat from ruminant livestock by lowering tariffs and food safety standards.
- prohibit member governments from setting environmental standards for government purchasing, such as “Buy Recycled,” “Good Wood,” and “Buy Local” rules.
- increase exports of rainforest destroying Malaysian and Peruvian palm oil by eliminating import tariffs in TPP nations.

HOW CAN WE STOP THIS?

Call your Senators and your Representative and urge them to publicly commit to vote NO on TPP. You can find their names and contact info at <http://gjae.org/leg>.

Global Justice for Animals & the Environment

(718) 218-4523 Email: info@tradejustice.net Web: <http://gjae.org>

TPP: THE POLLUTERS' POWERGRAB!

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) is a trade deal being negotiated between the US and 11 other nations. The public is barred from seeing TPP negotiating texts, but almost 600 corporate advisers, including reps of many of the corporations most responsible for climate change, have access, allowing them to influence US negotiating positions. Before sending TPP to Congress, President Obama has called upon Congress to grant him Fast Track trade authority, which will ban Congress from amending a single word of TPP's most environmentally destructive provisions before voting to implement the agreement.

TPP THREATENS TO:

- grant oil, gas, and mining companies the power to sue governments for unlimited sums in monetary damages in World Bank tribunals for enforcing their environmental laws.
- increase production of GHG intensive foods like farmed shrimp & meat from ruminant livestock by lowering tariffs and food safety standards.
- prohibit member governments from setting environmental standards for government purchasing, such as “Buy Recycled,” “Good Wood,” and “Buy Local” rules.
- increase exports of rainforest destroying Malaysian and Peruvian palm oil by eliminating import tariffs in TPP nations.

HOW CAN WE STOP THIS?

Call your Senators and your Representative and urge them to publicly commit to vote NO on TPP. You can find their names and contact info at <http://gjae.org/leg>.

Global Justice for Animals & the Environment

(718) 218-4523 Email: info@tradejustice.net Web: <http://gjae.org>

TPP: THE POLLUTERS' POWERGRAB!

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) is a trade deal being negotiated between the US and 11 other nations. The public is barred from seeing TPP negotiating texts, but almost 600 corporate advisers, including reps of many of the corporations most responsible for climate change, have access, allowing them to influence US negotiating positions. Before sending TPP to Congress, President Obama has called upon Congress to grant him Fast Track trade authority, which will ban Congress from amending a single word of TPP's most environmentally destructive provisions before voting to implement the agreement.

TPP THREATENS TO:

- grant oil, gas, and mining companies the power to sue governments for unlimited sums in monetary damages in World Bank tribunals for enforcing their environmental laws.
- increase production of GHG intensive foods like farmed shrimp & meat from ruminant livestock by lowering tariffs and food safety standards.
- prohibit member governments from setting environmental standards for government purchasing, such as “Buy Recycled,” “Good Wood,” and “Buy Local” rules.
- increase exports of rainforest destroying Malaysian and Peruvian palm oil by eliminating import tariffs in TPP nations.

HOW CAN WE STOP THIS?

Call your Senators and your Representative and urge them to publicly commit to vote NO on TPP. You can find their names and contact info at <http://gjae.org/leg>.

Global Justice for Animals & the Environment

(718) 218-4523 Email: info@tradejustice.net Web: <http://gjae.org>