

TPP:A Death Sentence for People with HIV/AIDS?

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) trade deal is currently being negotiated between the US, Japan, Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, Chile, Malaysia, Mexico, New Zealand, Peru, Singapore and Vietnam.

The negotiations, which began in 2010, are being conducted in secret, without the opportunity for public scrutiny. However, leaked drafts of the United States government's proposals for some sections of the agreement reveal the inclusion of dangerous provisions that would dismantle public health safeguards enshrined in international law and restrict access to affordable generic medicines for millions of people in developing countries.

Low-cost generic drugs saves lives. But the TPP is threatening to cut off the lifeline that generic drugs provide for people living with HIV/AIDS and many other diseases by extending patent monopolies and delaying generic competition. That translates into higher prices for people who need medicines. In developing countries, where people rarely have health insurance and must pay for medicines out of pocket, high prices keep lifesaving medicines out of reach and are often a matter of life and death.

Read the back to find out what we can do...

TPP:A Death Sentence for People with HIV/AIDS?

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) trade deal is currently being negotiated between the US, Japan, Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, Chile, Malaysia, Mexico, New Zealand, Peru, Singapore and Vietnam.

The negotiations, which began in 2010, are being conducted in secret, without the opportunity for public scrutiny. However, leaked drafts of the United States government's proposals for some sections of the agreement reveal the inclusion of dangerous provisions that would dismantle public health safeguards enshrined in international law and restrict access to affordable generic medicines for millions of people in developing countries.

Low-cost generic drugs saves lives. But the TPP is threatening to cut off the lifeline that generic drugs provide for people living with HIV/AIDS and many other diseases by extending patent monopolies and delaying generic competition. That translates into higher prices for people who need medicines. In developing countries, where people rarely have health insurance and must pay for medicines out of pocket, high prices keep lifesaving medicines out of reach and are often a matter of life and death.

Read the back to find out what we can do...

STOP THE TRANS-PACIFIC PARTNERSHIP!

In addition to limit access to lifesaving generic drugs, TPP will also outsource U.S. jobs, prohibit regulation of Wall Street, curtail Internet freedom, and grant foreign corporations the power to sue for compensation from our government when our laws prevent them from endangering our environment. The Obama administration intends to conclude negotiations by October!

Learn more - find out what we can do

Tuesday, May 28, 6:30 PM

Panelists from

Institute for Policy Studies * Sierra Club
Communication Workers of America * Institute for Policy Studies

ALL SOULS UNITARIAN UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

1157 Lexington Avenue between 79th and 80th Streets, NYC

Admission free * Donations welcome * Reception with light refreshments

RSVP at <http://tradejustice.net/528>

Sponsors: TradeJustice NY Metro, Sierra Club NYC, All Souls UU Church, and others

More info: (718) 218-4523 * info@tradejustice.net * <http://tradejustice.net/tpp>

STOP THE TRANS-PACIFIC PARTNERSHIP!

In addition to limit access to lifesaving generic drugs, TPP will also outsource U.S. jobs, prohibit regulation of Wall Street, curtail Internet freedom, and grant foreign corporations the power to sue for compensation from our government when our laws prevent them from endangering our environment. The Obama administration intends to conclude negotiations by October!

Learn more - find out what we can do

Tuesday, May 28, 6:30 PM

Panelists from

Institute for Policy Studies * Sierra Club
Communication Workers of America * Institute for Policy Studies

ALL SOULS UNITARIAN UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

1157 Lexington Avenue between 79th and 80th Streets, NYC

Admission free * Donations welcome * Reception with light refreshments

RSVP at <http://tradejustice.net/528>

Sponsors: TradeJustice NY Metro, Sierra Club NYC, All Souls UU Church, and others

More info: (718) 218-4523 * info@tradejustice.net * <http://tradejustice.net/tpp>